- They also advocate an institutional function that is satisfied when members discuss relevant parties who are absent from the decision-making process.
- Recently, Gouran has raised doubts about the usefulness of the functional perspective for all small groups.
 - It's beneficial for members to fulfill the four requisite functions only when they are addressing questions of policy.
 - Groups addressing questions of fact, conjecture, or value may not find the requisite functions relevant.